Western Area Power Administration Issues Notice of Final Marketing Criteria and Call for Applications

Western Area Power Administration (Western) recently issued a Federal Register Notice (FRN) announcing its final marketing criteria and call for applications for allocating the Schedule D Hoover power made available by the Hoover Power Allocation Act of 2011.

Included in the FRN is Western's response to comments received on its proposed Post-2017 marketing criteria.

Western intends to provide first consideration to Native American Tribes, up to 25% of the tribe's peak demand for all Federal allocations, and then to non-profit applicants eligible under Section 5 of the Boulder Canyon Project Act (i.e., States, municipal corporations, political subdivisions, and private corporations), and to rural electric cooperatives and municipal utilities. Western removed the utility status requirement.

Eligible applicants (except tribes) must be ready, willing, and able to receive and distribute or use the power from Western. Transmission and/or distribution must be in place for the power from Western by October 1, 2016.

Western will consider the amount of applicant's load already served by Federal hydropower.

Western reduced the minimum allocation from 1,000 kilo-watts (kW) to 100 kW. The maximum allocation remains at 3,000 kW.

Allocations are to be made to new allottees not currently receiving an allocation of Hoover power from either Western, the Arizona Power Authority or the Colorado River Commission.

Applications are due to Western by March 31, 2014.

A copy of Western's notice along with the application (Applicant Profile Data Form) can be found on Western's website at:
